

TARI:

Transnational Asia Research Initiative

Fall 2018

Seminar Series

September 26, 2018

*"You're Family Only When You're Rich":
The Moral Economy of Visas, Kinship, and Relational Labor*

Sohoon Yi

T.T. and W.F. Chao Foundation Postdoctoral
Fellow in Transnational Asian Studies

October 3, 2018

*Gendered Regimes of Illegality: The State
Management of Women's Migration in Asia*

Maria C. Hwang

Henry Luce Foundation Postdoctoral Fellow
in Southeast Asian Studies

October 31, 2018

*Se-cura: Security as the Presence and Absence of Care among Feminized
South Korean Flight Attendant Labor*

Alex Jong-Seok Lee

Academy of Korean Studies (AKS) Postdoctoral
Fellow in Transnational Korean Studies

Grand challenges today in politics, economics, social justice, immigration, armed conflicts, and environment are creating an overlapping effect between the Asian and the global, making it necessary that the existing framework for Asian Studies be re-crafted. Intensifying flows of people, goods, ideas, and cultures within Asia and between Asia and the rest of the world are calling for a new approach to Asia from a transnational and transhistorical perspective. The Chao Center's new research initiative, the Transnational Asia Research Initiative (TARI), brings together scholars from a broad spectrum of disciplines and methodologies to address this complexity.

Mechanical Lab 209

12:00 - 1:00 PM

Lunch Provided

Free and open to the public.
No RSVP required.

TARI:

Transnational Asia Research Initiative

Spring 2019

Seminar Series

February 15, 2019

Jainism and Bioethics: From Consequences to an "Ethics of Carefulness"

Brianne Donaldson

Bhagwaan Mahavir/Chao Family Foundation
Postdoctoral Fellow in Jain Studies

February 27, 2019

Differentiated Intimate Economies: Intimate Labor, Exchange Practices, and Gendered Migration in Hong Kong

Maria C. Hwang

Henry Luce Foundation Postdoctoral Fellow
in Southeast Asian Studies

April 5, 2019

Rohingyas are (not) Bengalis: Fighting over the Geographical Integrity and Cultural Autonomy in Myanmar's Arakan

D. Mitra Barua

Annette and Hugh Gragg Postdoctoral Fellow
in Transnational Asian Studies

April 8, 2019

Salmon in Shangri-La: Aquaculture and Identity in China and Tibet

Brendan A. Galipeau

Annette and Hugh Gragg Postdoctoral Fellow
in Transnational Asian Studies

Grand challenges today in politics, economics, social justice, immigration, armed conflicts, and environment are creating an overlapping effect between the Asian and the global, making it necessary that the existing framework for Asian Studies be re-crafted. Intensifying flows of people, goods, ideas, and cultures within Asia and between Asia and the rest of the world are calling for a new approach to Asia from a transnational and transhistorical perspective. The Chao Center's new research initiative, the Transnational Asia Research Initiative (TARI), brings together scholars from a broad spectrum of disciplines and methodologies to address this complexity.

Mechanical Lab 209

11:00 AM - Noon
Lunch Provided

Free and open to the public.
No RSVP required.

